

JIM LAMM is the Vice President of Circulation for The Charlotte Observer. He currently oversees all circulation sales, transportation and distribution operations for the Observer.

Jim's primary interest, outside of his profession, is amateur astronomy. Jim is a member of Southeast Planetarium Association, the Planetary Society, the Association of Lunar and Planetary Observers and the Astronomical League.

Jim is a past member of The Calumet Astronomical Society from his time spent in Northwest Indiana from 1996 to 1998. In 1998, Jim moved to Bradenton Florida where he volunteered at the South Florida Museum/Bishop Planetarium as a planetarium show operator and solar observing docent. In 2001 he was named to the Board of Directors of the South Florida Museum/Bishop Planetarium and served on the committee charged with rebuilding the planetarium that was destroyed by a devastating fire.

Currently, Jim serves as Southern Star Team Leader for the Charlotte Amateur Astronomers Club (www.charlotteastronomers.org), an amateur astronomy based group in Charlotte, North Carolina. Since 2003, he has held the position of vice-president for one term and president of the CAAC for three terms.

Jim enjoys spending his spare time as an amateur astronomer and has a particular interest in the Moon, planets and astrophotography. He is also a meteorite collector and has a second home and observatory at the Arizona Sky Village in the Chiricahua Mountains of Southeast Arizona.
