

M92 is one of my favorite globular clusters. Located in the constellation Hercules, it doesn't get a lot of attention because of its proximity to M13, but I love the tight dense core that's fully resolved in my 15" Dobsonian. It photographs well too. This is (60) 30 second exposures, stacked and processed in Pixinsight.