

Conjunction of Venus with the Pleiades

On the evening of April 23rd, the planet Venus appears positioned next to the Pleiades star cluster in the zodiac constellation Taurus, the Bull.

Venus is the brightest planet as seen from Earth, and it will continue its presence as our “evening star” through the end of September.

Use binoculars to observe the splendor of the many hot, young stars in the Pleiades cluster. Find out more about the wonders of the Pleiades star cluster at this link.
